The most successful businesses are high energy organisations with enlightened cultures. Such cultures are achieved through the positive and creative contributions of each and every colleague in order to serve customers and clients. The Barclays Way, our Code of Conduct, is an important resource that outlines the values and behaviours that all of us must demonstrate to uphold the Barclays ethic and make our firm a great place to work and with which to conduct business.

Please carefully review The Barclays Way and use it as a resource, as it is imperative that each of us acts in accordance with our values at all times.

The Barclays Way...

What this means for you

This Code of Conduct outlines the Purpose and Values which govern our Barclays way of working across our business globally. It constitutes a reference point covering all aspects of colleagues’ working relationships, specifically (but not exclusively) with other Barclays employees, customers and clients, governments and regulators, business partners, suppliers, competitors and the broader community.

The behavioural standard set by the Barclays Way applies to every Barclays employee and to colleagues in the subsidiaries in which we have a controlling interest. Other subsidiaries in which Barclays has a minority interest, and joint ventures in which we participate, are encouraged proactively to adopt an equivalent approach, as are any other entities or individuals contracted by Barclays to do work on the company’s behalf.

The objective is to define the way we think, work and act at Barclays to ensure we deliver against our Purpose of helping people to achieve their ambitions – in the right way.

- Barclays takes the Values and Behaviours and points set out in this Code of Conduct very seriously
- It is every colleague’s responsibility to be aware of and understand this Code of Conduct and the policies which apply to our roles
- Colleagues who are unsure of what course of action to take should check local policy, or with their line manager, or a senior manager. It is expected that, when unsure of a matter, colleagues will err on the side of caution
- Colleagues are required to undertake annual training, which includes an assessment to confirm understanding of the Barclays Way
- Any failure to act in accordance with the Values and Behaviours or breaches of this Code of Conduct may result in disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal.
The Barclays Way...

At a glance

Our Purpose, Values and Behaviours are fundamental to Barclays’ long-term success. They represent the set of standards which govern the actions of all of us who work for the bank and against which the performance of every one of us in Barclays will be assessed and rewarded. This means that, in reviewing our performance, we will need to consider how we have demonstrated the Values and Behaviours as well as how we have performed against our other objectives.

All colleagues will self-review and receive feedback on how they have applied the Values and Behaviours in fulfilling their role as part of the formal performance review process.

Behaviours

- Build trust with the colleagues and partners we work with.
- Seek out alternative perspectives and put our shared interests ahead of any individual or team.
- Collaborate proactively with colleagues across all of Barclays to get the best results.
- Embrace, and seek to increase, the diversity of our organisation.
- Show the courage to do and say the right thing.
- Act in private as we do in public, and honour our commitments.
- Challenge things we believe to be wrong and be open to challenge from others.
- Be accountable for failure as well as success, and not allocate blame.
- Take the time to understand clients’ and customers’ needs, regardless of our role.
- Always strive to surpass clients’ and customers’ expectations.
- Create and provide solutions for clients and customers that balance the short and long term.
- In serving our clients and customers, incorporate the perspectives of all our stakeholders.
- Arm for flawless delivery and learn from our mistakes.
- Take pride in both our individual work and that of our team.
- Actively contribute to the performance, development and engagement of our colleagues.
- Create the environment to attract and keep the best people who share our Values.
- Pioneer innovative and better ways to do things.
- Protect and enhance our reputation and legacy at all times.
- Find ways to positively impact all of the communities we interact with.
- Value sustainable progress as much as immediate achievements.
The Barclays Way...
how we behave

We apply our Values and Behaviours consistently across the bank in everything we do. This means that we act fairly, ethically and openly and abide by standards which are in many cases higher than those set by the laws and regulations which apply to our business.

In doing this, we apply a range of criteria, over and above financial considerations, aimed at building a sustainable, strong and profitable business for the long term and adding value to our business relationships and the broader communities in which we live and work.

We will benchmark our individual and corporate performance, not just on commercial results, but also on how we demonstrate the Values and Behaviours in our daily work.

As employees of Barclays we are all personally accountable for what we do every day. We call this Strengthening Personal Accountability, which underpins the UK regulators’ Individual Accountability framework, which is applicable to many colleagues both within and outside the UK. Our goal is to serve customers and clients in the best possible way.

Personal accountability is central to our culture and how we behave is instrumental in us achieving the highest standards of performance, adding value to our customers and clients and meeting our regulatory obligations. In order to achieve this, we expect colleagues to:

1. act with integrity;
2. act with due skill, care and diligence;
3. be open and co-operative with regulators;
4. treat customers fairly; and
5. observe proper standards of market conduct.

These expectations are in line with Barclays Values and, for all colleagues who are in scope of the Individual Accountability framework, are mandatory Conduct Rules. Employees in scope of the Individual Accountability framework are Senior Managers, Material Risk Takers, Certified Individuals, all UK employees (excluding ancillary staff) and overseas employees who deal with UK customers. Employees should familiarise themselves with and adhere to the relevant policies covering the Strengthening Personal Accountability framework.

Citizenship – our contribution to society

Finance and banking play a critical role as a key enabler of social and economic progress, growth and development. This concept, called shared value, is about creating a virtuous link between our own success and society’s progress, not discounting one or the other. Barclays has an opportunity to play a pivotal role in fostering innovation and facilitating inclusive, shared growth for all, now and as we develop the future of banking.

As a transatlantic consumer, corporate and investment bank, we reach millions of customers and clients. We take pride in being an example of good practice through our consistent application of policies, standards of governance and ways of working. Our long term aim is to provide our colleagues, customers and clients with the tools and conditions they need to access a prosperous future. Our Shared Growth Ambition is a fundamental element of this and focuses on activities and initiatives that drive social and commercial value – not one or the other. It is simply good business – for individuals and society, for today and for tomorrow.
We work independently and in collaboration and consultation with others in addressing global themes such as employability, entrepreneurship, financial inclusion, human rights and climate change, where business has an important contribution to make. Dialogue with a range of stakeholders on these, and other issues of concern, informs our policy and decision-making.

In doing this we:

- Take account of the broader impacts of our decisions. This includes identifying those who may be affected (directly and indirectly) and making an evaluation of social, environmental and ethical impacts integral to our assessment of client financial propositions, supplier relationships and the development of new products
- Manage our responsibilities to support governments and civil society organisations in respecting and upholding human rights principles wherever we operate
- Manage our own environmental performance in terms of consumption of resources, disposal of waste and reduction of adverse impacts, and contribute to the development of financial solutions and appropriate responses to the challenges presented by climate change
- Support colleagues in undertaking voluntary work in their communities
- Seek ways of harnessing our resources to further our contribution to society.
The Barclays Way

At Barclays we strive to create and maintain mutually beneficial long-standing relationships with personal, business, institutional and international customers and clients, that meet their needs and exceed their expectations. This means taking personal responsibility for understanding the financial advice and support that they need to achieve their goals, and ensuring that they are provided with creative solutions that enable them to make well-informed choices in support of their short and long-term goals.

Our objective is to offer good value and to deliver this via excellent and consistent customer and client service. We take pride in our reputation for providing innovative products and ideas that allow us to help our customers and clients manage their financial affairs better.

Customer/Client – delivering excellent service

In doing this we:

- Communicate clearly without jargon and are transparent about fees and charges, ensuring these are fair and reasonable
- Conduct sales, advertising and marketing of our products and services with integrity and do not make false, misleading or exaggerated claims
- Do not offer customers and clients products that are not right for them
- Maintain confidentiality of customer and client information
- Deliver on our promises and take personal responsibility for putting things right when they go wrong
- Resolve complaints diligently, fairly and quickly and measure customer/client satisfaction
- Take a responsible approach to clients who find themselves in financial difficulty
- Evaluate the broader risks and impacts of business propositions and products to anticipate and rectify adverse effects
- Avoid undeclared actual or potential conflicts of interest, or behaviour that may be perceived as a conflict of interest. This may be an actual or perceived conflict between an individual’s personal interests and the interests of Barclays as a whole (including our shareholders, supplier relationships, customers and clients), a conflict between the interests of two or more clients, or a situation where Barclays prioritises its own interests over those of suppliers, customers and clients. Where we cannot avoid such conflicts, we are transparent about their existence and the steps taken to manage them proactively.

At Barclays we treat each other with respect and appreciate that everyone has a valuable contribution to make. We put the interests of the bank and its customers above ourselves or any individual or single team and collaborate with colleagues in other parts of Barclays to deliver the best result. We demand excellence and acknowledge, and take pride in, our achievements.

We foster a working environment in which colleagues are trusted, take responsibility for both success and failure – without allocating blame – and are encouraged to challenge decisions or behaviours they believe are wrong. Doing the right thing, and having the courage to speak up when others may be reluctant to do so, is an important aspect of the Barclays Way. No employee will experience any form of overt or covert retaliation of any kind as a direct or indirect consequence of reporting an issue in good faith.

In doing this we:

- Act and are seen to act with the highest standards of conduct and integrity
- Challenge and escalate issues of concern in a fair and clear manner
- Welcome and foster diversity within our workforce
- Take a zero-tolerance approach to bullying and harassment
- Are committed to developing and maintaining our professional knowledge and skills
- Support and coach colleagues in developing their skills and career and provide them with the necessary training and tools, including constructive feedback on their performance and behaviours
- Take personal accountability for achieving high performance by setting challenging and stretching targets for ourselves and expect this of others
- Are open minded to, and respectful of, others’ points of view
- Recognise and celebrate colleagues’ achievements
- Evaluate and compensate performance on the basis of how objectives are met, as well as what is delivered
- Seek to employ and retain people who are exemplars of the Barclays way of working
- Behave in a way that demonstrates that every single role within the bank is important, as are the people who occupy those roles
- Behave in a way that demonstrates there are no unimportant people and no unimportant roles
- Recognise colleagues’ right to freedom of association and to participate constructively in dialogue with trade unions
- Provide a safe and healthy working environment, recognising that work/home balance is important and aids overall health, wellbeing and productivity
- Make colleagues with line management responsibilities aware that they have an additional obligation to ensure that their teams are effectively supervised and supported to meet the high standards expected of us all and that they lead by example at all times.

Governance and controls – maintaining high ethical standards

At Barclays we use our energy, skills and resources to deliver high-quality, sustainable results, taking account of the longer term as much as immediate achievements. We are committed to transparency in our disclosures and reporting, and to delivering a fair return to shareholders.

In managing our business, we appreciate that adherence to high standards of ethical conduct is fundamental to maintaining the trust and confidence of Barclays’ stakeholders, including clients and regulators. We will not compromise the controls or compliance requirements which govern our activities and behaviour. We apply consistent standards across the bank, including in risk management, anti-money laundering and financial crime prevention, fraud prevention, application of sanctions, bribery and corruption prevention, gifts and entertainment, conflicts of interest, anti-competitive practices and communication with internal and external stakeholders.

Where we engage with governments and regulators on issues relevant to our business, we are honest and transparent in our communication with them. Barclays is politically neutral; we do not participate in party political activities or make party political contributions.

In managing our relationships with suppliers we seek mutually beneficial relationships based on merit and work through our supply chain to ensure that related environmental, social and ethical impacts are identified and managed appropriately.

We respect our competitors and acknowledge that free and fair competition is good for business and customers and clients, driving innovation and improvements in service provision.

In doing this we:

- Ensure that information is prepared in accordance with best practice standards and is sufficiently comprehensive to enable shareholders and other stakeholders to make an informed assessment of both our strategies and our future prospects
- Take care to protect and enhance our reputation in everything that we do – our brand is more important to long-term stock market value and sustainable growth than short-term profits
- Ensure that all information in our public and internal communications is honest, accurate, clear and timely
- Make sure colleagues are familiar with and understand the controls and governance relevant to their roles, and that they undertake the relevant mandatory training
- Take action in relation to anyone working for Barclays who does not act in a manner consistent with this Code
- Keep within the spirit, as well as the letter, of the law and regulation and apply high standards of professional and ethical conduct at all times
- Practice responsible risk management and due diligence in our decision making
- Apply clear standards to tax planning for customers, clients and on our own account to ensure Barclays’ Tax Principles are upheld
- Take a zero-tolerance approach to bribery and corruption wherever it is encountered and do not make facilitation payments of any kind
- Maintain an open and clear dialogue with our regulators and ensure all communications are timely, accurate and comprehensive
- Do not offer, accept or solicit gifts or entertainment inappropriately as an inducement or means of influencing actions or opinions. Guidance on what is and is not acceptable is provided via Barclays Global Gifts and Entertainment policy, Global Standards and relevant business procedures
- Do not make any agreements of a formal or informal nature with competitors to fix or set prices or interest rates, restrict the supply of goods or services, conduct bid rigging, market sharing or any other anti-competitive practice
• Take a zero-tolerance approach to the facilitation of tax evasion in any country

• Maintain an open and clear dialogue with our regulators and ensure all communications are timely, accurate and comprehensive

• Do not offer, accept or solicit gifts or entertainment inappropriately as an inducement or means of influencing actions or opinions. Guidance on what is and is not acceptable is provided via Barclays Global Gifts and Entertainment policy, Global Standards and relevant business procedures

• Do not make any agreements of a formal or informal nature with competitors to fix or set prices or interest rates, restrict the supply of goods or services, conduct bid rigging, market sharing or any other anti-competitive practice

• Ensure that any colleague involved in politics in a personal capacity keeps this entirely separate from their work at Barclays and strives to avoid any association between their politics and the bank, including ensuring that there is no actual or perceived conflict with their duties and responsibilities to the bank

• Promote best practice in our supply chain and seek to partner with contractors and third party suppliers who share our Values and promote our Behaviours

• Ensure all interactions with external stakeholders (excepting customers and clients) in a professional capacity are managed and approved by an appropriate person within the relevant stakeholder team

• Do not seek to damage the reputation of competitors directly, by implication or innuendo.
The Barclays Way...

making decisions

Due to the diverse nature of Barclays’ business, it is impossible to cover all types of decisions or eventualities through published policies and guidance and colleagues may face dilemmas where the right way forward is difficult to determine. The Barclays Lens is a values-based decision making tool designed to help colleagues anticipate, identify and manage the risks and impacts of their decisions and actions at work, and to be aware of the potential broader impacts on society and the environment in the short and long term. The objective is to make better and more sustainable decisions.

The Lens includes a set of simple questions:

- How are we making a profit (directly or indirectly)?
  - Is Barclays obtaining profit (cost savings) from delivering value to the customer/client and not through penalising them?
  - Are we acting in a way that is likely to be viewed as fair and reasonable by most? Would the customer or external stakeholder think that an acceptable level of profit is being made?

- How are we being transparent and clear in our communication and dealings with customers, clients and stakeholders?
  - Is clear, simple language being used in our engagement with customers/stakeholders such that they understand what they are entering into?
  - Have the interests of all those who may be adversely affected by this decision/action been considered? And how are you engaging with stakeholders who may be impacted, such as shareholders, clients/customers, industry groups, NGOs or affected communities?
  - How will you provide on-going dialogue with the customer/client or external stakeholders that will engage and support them in their relationship with Barclays?

- How are we creating long term value?
  - Are we realising profits today at the expense of relationships tomorrow?
  - How will you move your customer/client and/or external stakeholders towards their aspiration and meet their needs?
How are we creating shared value that benefits Barclays, our customers and clients, and wider society?

- How could we change what we are doing to create value for our customer/client or stakeholders?
- What is the long term negative/positive value impact for Barclays, the customer/client and external stakeholders in what you are doing?
- What are the challenges faced by the customer/client and their communities with whom you are working, and how are we helping to meet these challenges?

Is this the right thing to do?

- Does this decision reflect the Purpose and Values of Barclays and is it consistent with the Barclays Way?
- Would I want someone to act like this on my behalf?
- Would you be comfortable seeing this decision/action on the front page of a newspaper?
- Would you have a clear conscience in explaining the action/decision to a colleague, family member or friend?
- Is this decision/action legal and in keeping with the spirit of the law?

These considerations should be applied when making material business decisions to ensure that potential impacts (intended and unintended) are identified and explored.
The Barclays Way...

speaking up and raising concerns

Speaking up

Colleagues should be able to take great pride in being associated with the Barclays name. This is why we must all be vigilant in ensuring that we live up to the Values and Behaviours which underpin our business and govern everything we do in our daily work.

There may be times when we think that in some areas the Values are not being applied in the right way or may be overlooked. If we think this is happening, we must show the courage to challenge actions, decisions or behaviours that we believe to be wrong. We should also take care to listen to other colleagues and be open to challenge from them in return.

Raising concerns

Sometimes the actions of a few may put our reputation at stake. If you believe something is not right – like misconduct, fraud or illegal activity – or if you feel that our standards are not being met, it is really important that you speak up. Any concerns you may have can be raised in confidence by:

- Discussing the matter with your manager, or manager’s manager
- Talking directly to your local Compliance team
- Contacting the Whistleblowing team via the Raising Concerns hotline or mailbox.

Concerns raised are taken seriously, treated sensitively, and where appropriate, independently investigated. Where permitted by law, you can raise your concerns with the Whistleblowing team anonymously.

For example, you may be aware of a colleague who:

- Uses confidential bank or customer information inappropriately
- You suspect of violating applicable legal or regulatory obligations
- Breaches policy in dealing with customers or clients.

In any of these situations, and others, the right thing to do is to speak up and raise your concern straight away.

Barclays’ intention is that we should act with the highest standards of integrity and honesty in all that we do. No one will be treated less favourably or discriminated against because they have raised a concern.

Supporting the Barclays Way... policies and guidance

Barclays has a range of policies and guidance which set out the control objectives, principles and other core requirements for the activities of the firm. Unless there are specific regulatory or statutory requirements in particular jurisdictions, all policies are expected to apply Group-wide to all Businesses and Functions.

A summary of the main points relating to particularly relevant topics in the context of the Barclays Way is included here as an aide-mémoire for colleagues.

For a complete list of policies, colleagues should refer to the Group Policy Register.

Citizenship

Respect for society

The greatest contribution Barclays can make to society is through operating a commercially successful business in a responsible way. At Barclays our Citizenship strategy, the Shared Growth Ambition, places this focus at the core of our business.

Our Ambition has three areas of focus:

- Access to employment: We will help people gain access to the vital skills they need to get into work and support high growth and high potential entrepreneurs to scale businesses and create employment opportunities

- Access to financial and digital empowerment: We will improve access to financial services, including developing targeted products and services for individuals and small businesses. We will also provide digital and financial literacy skills training to help empower our customers

- Access to financing: We will continue to create access to funding solutions for areas including environmental financing via the capital markets and lending for clean energy, water and low carbon technologies; social infrastructure; national and supranational development institutions; and small business financing.

Our Ambition is underpinned by performance metrics and we report publicly against these annually.

Respect for human rights

Barclays recognises we have clear responsibilities to support governments and civil society organisations in respecting and upholding human rights principles wherever we operate. We are committed to operating in accordance with the International Bill of Human Rights, (which includes the Universal Declaration of Human Rights), and take account of other internationally accepted human rights standards including the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises, and the International Labour Organisation Core Conventions and Treaties.
Our approach is outlined in the Barclays Group Statement on Human Rights, which covers our role as an employer, purchaser of goods and services, and provider of financial services to customers and clients, as well as our responsibilities to communities.

Barclays Group Statement on Modern Slavery outlines our approach to combatting the risk of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chains or any part of our business, in accordance with requirements of the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

Respect for the environment

Barclays is committed to addressing our environmental impacts and to seeking opportunities to improve our performance. We take steps to identify, prioritise and manage our environmental risks – both direct (e.g. consumption and disposal of resources within our operations) and indirect (e.g. those arising through our supply chain or through the provision of financial services to other businesses or projects which have potentially material environmental impacts).

In fulfilling our environmental responsibilities we require:

- Compliance with all applicable environmental legislation in the countries in which we operate
- Adherence to an environmental management system, including core buildings certified to ISO 14001
- Integration of environmental considerations into business decisions
- Consideration of environmental implications in our lending evaluations, including those reflected in Barclays’ sector specific environmental risk briefing notes, through adherence to the Equator Principles and through application of the environmental and social risk criteria which are embedded in Barclays’ internal credit policies and processes
- Collaboration with relevant key suppliers to deliver improvement in the environmental performance of our supply chain
- Use of sustainable practices in property design and management
- The setting of targets on key aspects of our environmental performance and regular review of these.

Supporting the communities where we operate

We know that both our business and colleagues’ personal development benefit from contributing to the communities where we operate worldwide, whether through our volunteering activities or our national and international investment programmes.

We use our skills and expertise to help people work towards financial independence, security and employment and believe that, in aligning our investment programmes to our core business, we can make the maximum positive impact, bringing the resources and capability of our organisation to tackle important social issues.

We also realise that our expertise can leverage more benefit if these issues are tackled in partnership with other organisations which have different but complementary skill sets. Such partnerships are key to the successful delivery of our programmes and a valuable source of learning and dialogue.
Customer/Client

Working in the interests of our customers and clients

Ensuring good financial outcomes for our customers and clients is fundamental to the way Barclays conducts business and core to our strategy. We proactively consider the impact of our strategy, products and services, and how they are sold and managed, on customers and clients. We consider customer and client needs over the long term when making decisions.

We have defined the following Conduct Risk outcomes as guiding principles:

- Our culture places customer interests at the heart of our strategy, planning, decision-making and judgements
- Our strategy is to develop long term banking relationships with our customers by providing banking products and services that meet their needs
- We do not disadvantage or exploit customers, customer segments or markets. We do not distort market competition
- We proactively identify Conduct Risks and intervene before they crystallise by managing, escalating and mitigating them promptly
- Our products, services and distribution channels are designed, monitored and managed to provide value, accessibility, transparency and to meet the needs of our customers
- We address any customer detriment and dissatisfaction in a timely and fair manner
- We safeguard the privacy of personal data.

Privacy and data protection

Barclays’ approach to privacy and data protection is to ensure we respect and protect all personal information which we hold. Privacy and data protection laws set out requirements for handling personal information. This means that colleagues must:

- Collect and use personal information fairly and lawfully
- Make sure that personal information held is secure, accurate, relevant and up to date
- Respect individuals’ rights in respect of their personal information e.g. provide a copy of their information on request, including details of how we use their information and where it is sourced; ensure that marketing suppression markers are applied correctly; ensure inaccurate information is corrected or deleted
- Only disclose personal information to those authorised to receive it
- Not hold excessive amounts of information or keep it longer than is necessary
- Complete relevant data protection training annually.
In addition to these outcomes, we strive to deliver excellent customer service:

- We consider the impact of strategic change on our customers and clients
- Our marketing materials are clear, balanced and accurate, enabling customers and clients to make an informed decision
- We understand the different roles and responsibilities of provider and distributor and ensure there are no actual or potential conflicts of interest that could harm the customer or client
- Our remuneration schemes drive the provision of appropriate products and services to our customers and clients
- We consider each complaint promptly and on its merits and treat each customer as an individual
- We continually collect, analyse and use information about our service and product sales to identify ways to improve our service to, and products for, our customers and clients.

Privacy and data protection

Barclays’ approach to privacy and data protection is to ensure we respect and protect all personal information which we hold. Privacy and data protection laws set out requirements for handling personal information. This means that colleagues must:

- Collect and use personal information fairly and lawfully
- Make sure that personal information held is secure, accurate, relevant and up to date
- Respect individuals’ rights in relation to their personal information e.g. provide a copy of their information on request, including details of how we use their information and where it is sourced; ensure that marketing suppression markers are applied correctly; ensure inaccurate information is corrected or deleted
- Only disclose personal information to those authorised to receive it
- Not hold excessive amounts of information or keep it longer than is necessary
- Complete relevant data protection training annually.
Diversity and inclusion

Barclays is a large, global organisation, which employs people from a wide variety of backgrounds, origins, experiences and cultures. This diversity is a strength – capitalising on what is unique about our colleagues, and drawing on their various perspectives and experiences, which adds value to the way we do business.

All Barclays employees have a responsibility to:

• Treat colleagues and clients as they would expect to be treated themselves, and to respect, understand and benefit from others’ views and opinions
• Listen to others and value colleagues’ input – even when views expressed differ from their own
• Take action if they observe inappropriate or unacceptable behaviour in the workplace. This may mean talking to the person(s) involved, discussing the matter with the appropriate line manager, seeking specific advice from Human Resources, or reporting the matter confidentially through the Raising Concerns channels.

Specifically, colleagues must:

• Respect the inherent dignity and worth of all people, and deal justly, fairly and impartially with every individual
• Respect the various traditions and cultures in Barclays and the communities we serve
• Help promote a culture that appreciates and respects the diversity of our people.

Barclays uses fair and objective employment practices to ensure that all employees:

• Are recruited, employed and developed based on merit, qualifications, skills and competency to do the job, not on personal bias or prejudice
• Are treated fairly and with respect throughout their employment
• Work in an environment where they have an equal chance to contribute and achieve their potential
• Work in an environment that encourages dignity and respect, and which is free from any form of victimisation, harassment, bullying and discrimination.
Discrimination, bullying and harassment

Barclays respects and values people from all backgrounds. We aim to create and promote a culture that is diverse and inclusive. Barclays will not tolerate any discrimination, bullying or harassment in the workplace under any circumstances. Such behaviour is completely inconsistent with our tradition of providing a respectful, professional and dignified workplace and is treated as a disciplinary matter.

All colleagues must play their part in creating the positive and respectful environment we are all entitled to enjoy. This means being sensitive to the impact that their own actions and behaviours can have on others, and treating colleagues, clients and other business contacts openly, honestly and courteously.

To this end colleagues must not:
- Exhibit discriminatory or harassing behaviour
- Bully or victimise any person
- Use offensive or insensitive language to any person
- Make any comments, acts or physical contact that could be perceived as sexual harassment, intimidation or tacit approval of such harassment
- Communicate (in any way or by any means) material or statements that are discriminatory, offensive, defamatory, sexual, pornographic or harassing in nature
- Use any of Barclays’ systems in a manner that could be embarrassing or detrimental to Barclays’ reputation or interests, or for any form of discriminatory or harassing behaviour.

Colleagues should speak up if they witness or are aware of any discriminatory or harassing behaviour. This could be by talking to the person(s) involved, discussing the matter with the appropriate line manager, seeking specific advice from Human Resources, or reporting the matter confidentially through the Raising Concerns hotline and email.

Barclays will not tolerate:
- Any form of discrimination based on race, religion or belief, gender, sexual orientation, disability, age, pregnancy or maternity, marriage or civil partnership, gender reassignment or other characteristic protected by relevant law
- Any action, conduct or behaviour of a sexual, racial, religious or other form of harassing nature, that is intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive to, or unwanted by, any other person.

Barclays will treat allegations of discrimination, bullying or harassment in a serious and sensitive manner, and seek to resolve issues as quickly as possible.
Personal circumstances

Subject to local policies and procedures and to any restrictions imposed by applicable local laws, all Barclays employees are required to inform their line manager or other appropriate contact of changes in the following circumstances:

- Any conflict of interest or outside business interest
- Any conviction for a criminal offence
- Changes in legal right-to-work status
- Any adverse credit judgements
- Politically exposed person status or close family connection to a client/customer/public official, regulator or other external stakeholder who has the authority to award business to Barclays or otherwise influence Barclays’ interests (as required by Barclays Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption policy)
- New convictions, Police cautions, judgements or court orders for criminal offences (excluding traffic offences).

1 Refer to local HR teams for specific requirements applicable to your business area.
2 Unless local legislation expressly provides that the conviction does not have to be disclosed for the role you are carrying out.
3 If the requirement to provide this information is permitted by local law.

Workplace safety

All Barclays colleagues have a personal responsibility while at work to take reasonable care of their own and others’ health and safety.

This means:

- Taking all reasonable precautions to prevent workplace accidents or injuries, by understanding the risks present in the daily work environment
- Adhering to their business unit Health and Safety policy and standards, and complying with any local Health and Safety laws and regulations applicable to their role
- Immediately reporting any unsafe working conditions, work related accident or ‘near miss’ to their line manager or Health and Safety contact
- Challenging any unsafe acts that could cause harm to themselves or others
- Knowing what to do in an emergency situation and taking part in regular emergency evacuation drills
- Completing mandatory Health and Safety training assigned to them.
Barclays is committed to ensuring the health, safety and welfare of all employees and visitors, and providing and maintaining safe working conditions for all employees and other people for whom we have responsibilities.

Line managers in particular must:

- Set a personal example in promoting a healthy and safe work environment for the employees they manage
- Ensure all employees they manage know what to do in the event of an emergency
- Ensure all employees they manage complete the necessary Health and Safety training and attestations
- Ensure checks are in place confirming that appropriate risk assessments are completed for all employees they manage
- Ensure that all unsafe working conditions, accidents and ‘near misses’ are reported
- Communicate with employees on health and safety matters and escalate any employee health and safety concerns to the Health and Safety department.
Protecting Barclays’ assets

All colleagues are custodians of Barclays’ property and assets including its brand and intellectual property and have a responsibility to ensure they are used for Barclays’ legitimate business purposes only.

Colleagues must not:

- Make use of Barclays’ assets for personal gain e.g. taking or using funds or other resources, or using or disclosing information, for their own or others’ benefit.
- Borrow or remove property from our premises without prior approval.
- Use branded stationery, goods or other media for unofficial purposes.
- Use Barclays’ systems to access, download or forward inappropriate internet content or send inappropriate communications.
- Use third party assets, including third party brands, copyright or other intellectual property, unlawfully or in breach of Barclays’ policy on Intellectual Property.

Physical security

Barclays is a high profile global brand and the security of our people, premises, assets and information is at the heart of our ability to provide our customers with a high quality service and leading edge products.

The physical security threats we face are varied and have no geographic boundaries. Consequently, Barclays must do everything in its power to minimise the risk. Fortunately security incidents don’t happen very often, but they can happen anywhere, at any time, and could have an enormous impact on our business.

Barclays Corporate Security constantly monitors the global threat picture; identifies risks; monitors them; and then develops strategies, plans and processes to manage them. However, security risk mitigation is not just a job for senior management and the Corporate Security team; it is the responsibility of all colleagues to:

- Understand and comply with security policies.
- Exercise vigilance and be prepared to report anything that they consider to be suspicious.
- Know their security points of contact and how to raise an issue of concern.

By using a common sense approach, being alive to the threats we face, adhering to security policies and embedding robust local procedures and contingency plans we can collectivly reduce the risk and enable us to respond in a pragmatic manner, minimising the impact security incidents have on our business.

If you require more information about physical security matters, your Regional Corporate Security team will be able to provide advice and assistance.
Group Resilience Policy and Standards

Our aim at Barclays is to provide a consistent and highly available service to our customers/clients, be resistant to failure by insulating customers, clients and markets from any internal disruption. A key contributor to achieving this is understanding how resilient our business is and to build resilience across all parts of our business including technology, premises, people, teams and suppliers.

Resilience is an important focus for Barclays, being resilient will reduce the downtime our customers/clients experience in an incident or system outage and ultimately it will improve the service we offer to them. Being a resilient organisation will give us a competitive edge and it will allow us to build trust in our customers/clients so that they know they can rely on us to deliver, every time and will make us market leaders.

Therefore all colleagues at Barclays must understand and adhere to the Group Resilience Policy and Standards to be able to recognise the risks within their business. The Group Resilience Policy and Standards and the Group Resilience Methodology provide guidance on how our Business can work towards establishing resilient business processes that will provide a robust and continuous service. The policy explains how to identify the risks in our services and how to manage those risks.

Communication with the media and public speaking appearances

Barclays engages with the media in a fair, straightforward and responsive manner, using true and accurate information and data.

If a colleague is approached by the media for comment at any time, they should not comment on or off the record unless officially designated as a Barclays spokesperson by the appropriate line manager and media relations team.

Barclays has an External Communications policy outlining colleagues’ responsibilities when dealing with media-related matters. We also have a specific policy outlining the appropriate action required in the event of the leaking of inside and price sensitive information to the media.

Barclays also has clear guidelines and rules for colleagues relating to the use of social media. There are two policy documents – one which sets out the rules colleagues must adhere to prior to, and when they are, acting on behalf of Barclays in a professional capacity in the social media space; and another which provides guidance for colleagues on personal usage of social media channels where there is potential for their personal and professional roles to be linked.

We approach online communication in the same way as we do other communications channels – by using sound judgement and common sense and adhering to our Values. Prior to accepting an invitation to speak at an external conference or other public forum, colleagues must obtain approval from their line manager and local media relations team (including reference to any applicable Gifts and Entertainment policy) on both their attendance and the content of the presentation/statements.
Governance and controls

Risk management

The Enterprise Risk Management Framework (ERMF) governs the way in which Barclays identifies and manages its risks.

Barclays engages in activities which entail risk taking, every day, throughout its business. The firm is vulnerable to credit losses in its lending and banking transactions. It experiences gains and losses from market risk in its traded positions. It is subject to Treasury risk (including liquidity, leverage, capital loss) in its financial management. Many important activities are managed and controlled by models, which introduce risk in themselves. Across its business, the firm is subject to Operational risks, including from fraud, and process or technology failure. Our reputation is important when it comes to trust in the firm’s integrity and competence. In addition Barclays may, in its activities, create Conduct risk in relation to its customers, clients and the markets in which it operates. Lastly, Barclays faces the risk of being penalised for not meeting its legal obligations.

All employees regardless of their positions, functions or locations must play their part in the firm’s risk management. Employees are required to be familiar with risk management policies which are relevant to their responsibilities, know how to escalate actual or potential risk issues, and have a role-appropriate level of awareness of the risk management process as defined by the ERMF.

Accounting and external disclosure

Listed companies like Barclays must provide shareholders, clients and the general public with information about their business and finances. Information disclosed must be true, accurate, consistent and not misleading.

Statements regarding Barclays’ existing financial position and forward looking financial statements may be made only by properly authorised officers of the organisation. Any individual making a public disclosure on behalf of Barclays must be authorised to do so.

Policies and procedures are in place to ensure that confidential information is protected, including ensuring relevant information is properly segregated and confidentiality is retained.
Tax

Barclays is committed to contributing to the economies of the countries in which we operate through the payment of tax. We have a fiduciary duty to manage our tax affairs responsibly and recognise that a balance is required in servicing the needs of different stakeholders and the bank. In the ordinary course of our business we may provide customers and clients with tax planning and risk management solutions that support their commercial objectives, but we always do so in full compliance with our Tax Principles and the UK Code of Practice on Taxation for Banks.

Within Barclays we believe that tax planning for customers, clients and on our own account must:

- Support genuine commercial activity
- Comply with generally accepted custom and practice, in addition to the law and the UK Code of Practice on Taxation for Banks
- Be of a type that the tax authorities would expect
- Only take place with customers and clients sophisticated enough to assess the risks
- Be consistent with, and be seen to be consistent with, our Purpose and Values.

Should any of these principles be threatened, we will not proceed, regardless of the commercial implications.

Conflict of interest

An actual or potential conflict of interest may impair ability to make fair and objective business decisions on Barclays’ behalf, cast doubt on a colleague’s integrity and be damaging to Barclays’ reputation. All potential conflicts of interest must be avoided altogether, or properly managed if allowed to exist.

While impossible to define every situation where a conflict may arise, this may occur when:

- Barclays’ interests conflict with those of a customer/client
- The interests of one customer/client are in competition with another
- Our business practices place Barclays’ interests ahead of the customer/client
- Managing or recruiting a close friend or family member
- A colleague’s personal interests compete with the interests of Barclays or customers/clients.

Barclays expects that colleagues will exercise sound judgement, in accordance with our Values, and take advice where appropriate so that high ethical standards are maintained.

Where an actual or potential conflict is identified, colleagues must:

- Disclose to their line manager and Compliance team immediately and co-operate with their directions
- Withdraw from any decision-making process or transaction that creates or is perceived as a conflict, where the conflict cannot be managed appropriately in line with Barclays’ conflicts of interest arrangements.

Detailed requirements are laid out in Group and Business-level Conflicts of Interest policies and standards.

It is a regulatory requirement that Barclays has controls covering conflicts of interest and takes appropriate measures to avoid altogether or properly identify and manage (if allowed to exist) potential conflicts. As part of this, we review and understand the different roles of provider and distributor to ensure there are no conflicts that may harm the customer/client’s interests. Some conflicts may also be managed appropriately by the development of structures, e.g. the separation of particular business functions, of decision-making processes, management of confidential information, and strict conflict monitoring.

1 Barclaycard colleagues based in the US should use the BCUS Compliance mailbox
Outside employment, business interests and affiliations

Barclays respects colleagues’ privacy and does not, as a matter of course, take an interest in their personal conduct outside work. However, where personal, financial or political activities may interfere with a colleague’s loyalty to Barclays, the interests of a client or other third-party, or impact adversely on Barclays’ reputation, this may constitute a conflict of interest which must be resolved.

Examples of activities or relationships that may cause such a conflict are:

- Pursuing paid employment or work outside Barclays
- Holding or pursuing independent business interests
- Holding or pursuing any form of commercial directorship or national appointment to a trade association or professional body
- Having colleagues’ family members receive preferential treatment
- Holding a position outside Barclays which interferes with a colleague’s duties as a Barclays employee
- Holding direct financial interests of a controlling nature in suppliers or competitors
- Investing money (personally or via involvement in investments of close family members) in any corporate customer/client where this may cause conflict between personal and Barclays’ interests
- Personal investment activities, including investment in the shares of Barclays or its affiliates or client companies.
Governance and controls... contd.

Colleagues undertaking outside employment or activity which could conflict with their role at Barclays must:

- Familiarise themselves with the relevant policy requirements
- Disclose details of personal account dealings to Barclays, where required under the relevant personal account dealing policy requirements and the Group Share Dealing Code
- Obtain approval from their line manager (and/or Compliance or business head depending on the circumstances) beforehand. Approval will not be refused unreasonably. Specifically, approval must be obtained for all directorships or other offices, including trusteeships or company secretary offices
- Seek re-approval if there is a change in circumstances
- Withdraw from any decision-making process or transaction that creates an actual or potential conflict.

Colleagues must not:

- Allow any outside activity or relationship to interfere with the fulfilment of their role at Barclays
- Conduct any activity or relationship that constitutes a breach of the law
- Represent or speak on behalf of Barclays outside their role
- Use Barclays’ time, property or equipment to further any outside activity or relationship.

Competition/anti-trust law

Barclays is committed to compliance with competition/anti-trust laws in all of the jurisdictions in which we operate. Competition laws prohibit anti-competitive behaviour, e.g., collaborating with competitors.
Colleagues are required to:

- Comply with the competition/anti-trust policy
- Comply with competition law in every jurisdiction in which you operate or have clients
- Complete competition law training annually
- Follow any written guidance from the Barclays Competition Team
- Report immediately to the Barclays Competition Team any potential competition law issue and/or communication received from competition authorities
- Not make any contact with the competition authorities yourself.

Litigation

Barclays is committed to resolving as soon as practicable remaining legacy conduct issues, while at the same time promoting a strong values driven culture across the bank that helps to prevent the creation of new issues. Where litigation does arise, colleagues need to follow best practice in the management and reporting of litigation set out in Barclays’ Policy on Litigation to minimise any risks. Potential risks if litigation is not properly managed can include significant costs, penalties or non-monetary sanctions that affect the way we do business, as well as reputational damage.

Within Barclays, and under Barclays’ Policy on Litigation, ‘litigation’ includes any legal action or regulatory proceedings, whether existing or threatened, and investigations conducted by, or in association with, Barclays Litigation team.

Colleagues are required to:

- Pass any documents or communications relating to litigation received within Barclays from third parties directly to Barclays Litigation team upon receipt and without delay
- Ensure all litigation is managed by or with the support of a Barclays Litigation lawyer unless delegated authority has been provided in accordance with Barclays’ Policy on Litigation. This means you should not do any of the following without first obtaining approval from a Barclays Litigation lawyer: create, circulate or destroy any documents relating to the matter; provide any information about the matter to a third party; or seek to conduct your own investigations or give your opinion on what you believe went right or wrong
- Not make any public statement about litigation without obtaining prior approval in accordance with Barclays’ Policy on Litigation
- Raise any potential litigation issues or concerns promptly with Barclays Litigation team
- Complete allocated litigation training.
Governance and controls... contd.

Anti-bribery and anti-corruption

Barclays is committed to conducting our global activities free from any form of bribery or corruption. We adopt a zero-tolerance approach to any acts of bribery or corruption perpetrated by Barclays’ colleagues, suppliers and others with whom we do business or who act on our behalf. Our Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption policy and our Introducer policy are designed to help us comply with the UK Bribery Act 2010 (Barclays applies this to all our businesses globally) and the US Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. Colleagues must also comply with their local anti-bribery and anti-corruption legislation.

Anything that has a value could be, or could be perceived to be, a bribe – e.g. cash payments, excessive gifts and hospitality, charitable donations, sponsorships or preferential treatment in relation to employment or work opportunities. Particular care must be taken when giving anything of value to public/government officials (including employees of government or state owned entities) due to the strict rules and regulations which may apply to their roles and responsibilities.

Barclays employees are therefore:

- Prohibited from offering, promising, providing, requesting or receiving anything of value to or from any person or entity for the purpose of:
  - improperly obtaining or retaining business or securing an advantage; and/or
  - inducing the recipient to perform their role in breach of an expectation of good faith, impartiality or trust
- Prohibited from making facilitation payments (small payments to public/government officials to secure or speed up an action to which the payer is already entitled), even if this represents local custom
- Prohibited from offering or accepting gifts or entertainment to or from third-parties unless this falls within the parameters of the Barclays Gifts and Entertainment policy
- Prohibited from providing employment or other work opportunity in order to improperly obtain or retain business or secure an improper advantage for Barclays
- Prohibited from exploiting close family connections to clients/customers, public officials/politically exposed persons, regulators or other external stakeholders in order to improperly obtain or retain business or secure an advantage for Barclays

Gifts and entertainment

The exchange of gifts and entertainment is a normal part of doing business in many countries in which Barclays operates and can serve the legitimate goal of building goodwill in business relationships. However, inappropriate or excessive gifts and entertainment offered to and received from third-parties (including customers, suppliers and public officials) can be used to exert improper influence and amount to, or create the impression of, bribery.

Colleagues need to operate in a way which ensures that the highest legal and ethical standards are observed at all times, and that they are demonstrably independent from those to or from whom gifts and entertainment are given and received.

There are declaration and pre-approval requirements for the giving and the receiving of gifts and these restrictions, including pre-approval limits and the list of prohibited gifts and entertainment, are laid out in the Gifts and Entertainment policy and standards and any relevant business procedures.
• Required to conduct appropriate due diligence on introducers, to obtain appropriate internal governance approvals for introducer arrangements and to include appropriate anti-bribery and anti-corruption clauses in contractual arrangements with introducers

• Required to conduct appropriate due diligence on third party service providers, and to include appropriate anti-bribery and anti-corruption clauses in contractual arrangements with third party service providers

• Required to report any suspicions of, or attempts at, bribery or corruption, or suspected or actual breaches of the Barclays Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption policy

• Required to complete mandatory anti-bribery and anti-corruption training assigned to them.

Anti-money laundering, Terrorist financing, Sanctions and Fraud

Financial institutions are at the forefront of the fight against criminals who attempt to use our products or systems to launder the proceeds of their crimes, to finance terrorism or to bypass applicable national and international sanctions laws, including trade embargoes. We share a legal, regulatory, ethical and social responsibility to restrict the access of criminals to financial services markets and our systems, to protect our customers and clients, colleagues and others with whom we do business and to support governments, regulators and law enforcement in wider crime prevention.

The law imposes personal liability for failing to adhere to anti-money laundering rules. It is essential that Barclays colleagues are familiar with both the policy and the procedures necessary to support our efforts to prevent Barclays from being used by criminals, be it carrying out customer due diligence and what to do when a suspicion or knowledge of criminal activity arises or assisting with law enforcement enquiries. Barclays also has zero tolerance to fraud and other dishonest actions perpetrated by bank employees. All colleagues are required to complete the relevant financial crime training on taking up their role and regularly thereafter.

Management and use of information

Barclays may hold information in oral, paper based and electronic form relating to customers/clients, employees, suppliers and other third-parties, including our own intellectual capital and property. This information is confidential and may also be commercially sensitive. Colleagues must ensure that confidential information is handled with integrity and discretion and in accordance with applicable laws and guidelines.

Barclays colleagues must:

- Presume that information is confidential and treat it as such
- Be aware of legal and regulatory obligations not to disclose such information to third parties
- Only use or disclose information for appropriate business purposes
- Comply with the Barclays Share Dealing Code when dealing in Barclays shares or any other shares in listed entities if they have access to price-sensitive inside information on a regular or occasional basis.
Regulatory investigations

Barclays operates in a highly regulated environment. We need to comply with all relevant laws and regulations and to be open and transparent with our regulators. Sometimes Barclays itself, a regulator or another external body will conduct an investigation into our conduct or practices. Colleagues are required to participate openly and constructively in these investigations.

In such a situation colleagues must:

- Fully co-operate with, and provide accurate information to, any internal investigation or review conducted by Barclays. Similarly, fully co-operate with, and provide accurate information to, any external investigation, including any government or regulatory body investigation. Failure to do so may be a criminal offence, and could lead to disciplinary action, including dismissal.
- Immediately inform their line manager when they become the subject of, or are called on to contribute to, any internal or external investigation, unless prohibited from doing so by laws, regulations or the investigating body.
- Ensure that relevant information to which they have access on either the internal or external investigation is maintained, is not withheld, and is not tampered with or altered.
- Comply with any business unit and Group-wide policies on reporting or complying with internal or external investigations.
- Comply with all relevant regional or global policies setting out regulatory or Barclays requirements.

The Contact with Regulators policy establishes the principles governing all significant regulatory interactions with Barclays’ regulators. Online training, available to colleagues across the bank, provides guidance on how the Barclays Purpose and Values can guide us during these regulatory interactions.
Governance and controls... contd.

Political donations and engagement

Barclays is a politically neutral organisation and does not engage in party political campaigning or make party political donations. We do conduct dialogue with government on issues relevant to our business and ensure that any communication undertaken is honest, comprehensive and accurate.

Colleagues involved in political activity in a personal capacity have a responsibility to make sure that this is kept entirely separate from their duties as an employee and that Barclays’ funds or resources (including time) are not used for political purposes. It is not permitted for any colleague to coerce or pressurise other employees to make political contributions.

So that conflicts of interest are avoided, colleagues are expected to exercise discretion and not become involved in matters of political controversy that may compromise the interests of the bank and/or their role.

Any material political activity should be approved in advance with line management, Compliance and the relevant business head.

When considering use of political speakers, the following rules apply:

- No fees should be paid to political speakers (including former politicians and government officials e.g. elected officials, heads of state, cabinet secretaries)
- Political speakers who do not receive a fee are permitted
- Central bankers, chief economists, political journalists, political academics are permitted
- Reasonable expenses may be incurred for political speakers e.g. paid travel and/or accommodation – provided no preferential treatment is given
- Exceptions to this provision may be granted only with the express prior written permission of the Group CEO’s office
- Speaker fees for non-political speakers should be in keeping with standard Events procedures.
Procurement

Barclays seeks mutually beneficial relationships with suppliers based on merit. We work through our supply chain to promote responsible and inclusive procurement practices, applying standards of integrity and good practice in managing related environmental, social and ethical impacts. This is integral to our Sourcing and Supplier Management policy and its supporting standards and also to our Supplier Code of Conduct.

Within Barclays we:

- Ensure equal and fair treatment during the supplier selection process. All Barclays suppliers are selected or re-appointed in accordance with the Sourcing and Supplier Management policy and appropriate due diligence is applied in the selection of all suppliers, agencies and contractors.
- Do not link the selection of a supplier or the award of a contract to the purchase of any Barclays product.
- Provide competitive bidding opportunities to diverse suppliers – companies of different size, years in business, ownership and geographic characteristics.
- Avoid conflicts of interests or any situation which could give rise to an appearance of a conflict of interest – we expect colleagues and suppliers to conduct themselves in a way that avoids conflicts of interest (actual or potential). We never award a contract or structure a negotiation on the basis of a gift or courtesy from a supplier.
- Comply with applicable regulation, including the UK Modern Slavery Act.
- Ensure suppliers satisfy relevant laws and regulatory requirements and are able to evidence adherence to applicable laws and policies if required to do so by Barclays.
- Ensure colleagues with key supplier management roles, such as nominated Supplier Relationship Managers and Accountable Executives, manage suppliers/services on behalf of Barclays effectively, complying with the relevant standards detailed within the Sourcing and Supplier Management policy and working in line with Barclays’ Values.
- Act in accordance with data privacy requirements by applying reasonable discretion and appropriate judgement when responding to supplier information requests or disclosing anything which might be considered confidential.
- Act with integrity and seek to honour commitments made to suppliers by complying with the terms of third-party contracts including payment within the agreed time frame.
- Seek to engage with key suppliers where appropriate to promote improvement in their social, ethical and environmental performance.

Colleagues whose role involves purchasing goods and services, e.g. selecting suppliers, managing suppliers or overseeing the provision of services and associated risk, should:

- Be fully familiar with the Sourcing and Supplier Management policy.
- Follow the correct process. The risk and value of a purchase determines whether the requirement must be referred to Procurement or whether the purchase can be made from within the business.
The Barclays Way...
questions and answers

Q. What should I do if local law conflicts with other laws, internationally accepted standards or Barclays’ own policy?

A. If the provisions of this Code conflict with any local laws, you should discuss this with your line manager or local HR or local Compliance teams. In some circumstances local laws may, for example, prevent the disclosure of certain convictions or other information (such as credit information). In such circumstances we must adhere to those local laws and policies will be adapted locally which reflect this.

Q. What should I do if I have concerns that a certain decision or way of working is not in keeping with the Barclays Way?

A. Concerns should be raised with the decision maker or appropriate line manager in the first instance. If this does not resolve the concern, or if a colleague feels uncomfortable in doing this, they should use the Raising Concerns telephone or email communication channels to flag the issue.

Q. What should I do if a client or supplier (or potential client or supplier) offers me tickets to a major entertainment or sporting event?

A. Colleagues should refer to the Barclays Gifts and Entertainment policy which provides criteria for the acceptance of hospitality. If a colleague still is not clear what is or is not permissible, they should consult their local Compliance team or the regional G&E team.

Q. What should I do if I am attending a meeting or event with clients or competitors and there is discussion about competitors’ pricing strategy or other confidential information?

A. Colleagues finding themselves in this situation should ask the meeting or event participants to desist from the discussion. If the discussion nevertheless continues, colleagues should leave the meeting immediately, making sure that their objections to the discussion are noted. In all cases, colleagues should report the incident to their line manager and to the Barclays Competition team.

Q. What should I do if I am a politically exposed person (PEP) or I have a family connection to a client/customer/public official/regulator or other external stakeholder?

A. In certain circumstances your PEP status or family connections may create a conflict of interest and/or a bribery and corruption risk. You should speak to your line manager in the first instance and consider whether you are required to take any action, e.g. making a formal disclosure of your PEP status or family connection under the Barclays Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption policy.

Q. What should I do if I am aware of, or am asked to participate in, any activity or decision designed to circumvent Barclays policy or regulation, or which appears to push the boundaries of accepted practice to an unacceptable (or potentially unacceptable) extent?

A. If a colleague feels that a decision or activity they encounter is not in keeping with Barclays’ behavioural or policy commitments, they should raise this with their line manager or local Compliance team. If they are uncomfortable with this approach, they may flag the issue using the Raising Concerns telephone or email communication channels.

Q. I am thinking of campaigning for a local political candidate, is there anything I need to do before going ahead?

A. Colleagues undertaking political activity should ensure this is conducted in a personal capacity, in their own time, and does not make use of Barclays’ resources or place Barclays’ reputation at risk. Any substantial commitment should be approved by the appropriate line manager.

Q. What should I do if I am suspicious that a client or colleague is engaged in fraudulent or other illegal activity?

A. Colleagues in this situation should report their suspicions to their line manager or local Fraud Risk team. The Barclays Fraud policy provides instruction and guidance on required actions.

Q. What is the difference between the Raising Concerns policy and the reputation risk escalation procedure in the Barclays Reputation Risk Framework?

A. The Raising Concerns policy escalation procedure should be used to flag decisions and issues which may breach the standards and policies to which Barclays adheres and which colleagues do not feel able to raise through ‘business as usual’ procedures. The Reputation Risk Framework escalation procedure is part of the routine evaluation of decisions and is used by Barclays businesses and functions to assess and benchmark these from a reputation risk perspective.
Q. What should I do if I am aware of, or am asked to participate in, any activity or decision designed to circumvent Barclays policy or regulation, or which appears to push the boundaries of accepted practice to an unacceptable (or potentially unacceptable) extent?

A. If a colleague feels that a decision or activity they encounter is not in keeping with Barclays’ behavioural or policy commitments, they should raise this with their line manager or local Compliance team. If they are uncomfortable with this approach, they may flag the issue using the Raising Concerns telephone or email communication channels.

Q. I am thinking of campaigning for a local political candidate, is there anything I need to do before going ahead?

A. Colleagues undertaking political activity should ensure this is conducted in a personal capacity, in their own time, and does not make use of Barclays’ resources or place Barclays’ reputation at risk. Any substantial commitment should be approved by the appropriate line manager.

Q. What should I do if I am suspicious that a client or colleague is engaged in fraudulent or other illegal activity?

A. Colleagues in this situation should report their suspicions to their line manager or local Fraud Risk team. The Barclays Fraud policy provides instruction and guidance on required actions.

Q. What is the difference between the Raising Concerns policy and the reputation risk escalation procedure in the Barclays Reputation Risk Framework?

A. The Raising Concerns policy escalation procedure should be used to flag decisions and issues which may breach the standards and policies to which Barclays adheres and which colleagues do not feel able to raise through ‘business as usual’ procedures. The Reputation Risk Framework escalation procedure is part of the routine evaluation of decisions and is used by Barclays’ businesses and functions to assess and benchmark these from a reputation risk perspective.
